

Beastie Boys Doc Gets Special Screening

Mar 14, 2006

Story by: Jesseka Kadylak

Be one of the first to view the Beastie Boys' documentary Awesome, I Fuckin' Shot That, when it is shown nationwide on nearly 200 screens March 23, along with a special pre-show mini-movie. The documentary, which will get a regular release in major cities March 31, was made October 9, 2004 when the Boys distributed 50 hand-held video cameras to fans at their sold-out Madison Square Garden show. Moviegoers at the special screenings will also get to see the exclusive 30-minute segment A Day In The Life Of Nathaniel Hornblower, starring David Cross. Beastie enthusiasts may know Hornblower (who filmed A Day In The Life... special for this occasion) as Adam Yauch (MCA), who also directed the documentary.

www.awesomeishotthat.com/main

www.beastieboys.com

*Eating right
can help
make your body strong...*

*...and might even make you burp
louder!*

can your
FOOD
do that?

smallstep
KIDS!

Ad
Council

Protein
can help
keep your brain
strong...

...which might help you
ace that next quiz!

can your FOOD
do that?

smallstep
KIDS!

Ad
Council